

It has come to my attention that the FCC is proposing to expand LPFM service such that current national/regional services may be displaced. This of great concern since I listen to a national service (K-Love) exclusively. There are no other local format stations in our area that provide the type of music and information provided by this national provider. The local christian community would be greatly disrupted if we were to lose K-Love to a LPFM station. Although K-Love is a national service, it also provides local announcements critical to our community such as weather alerts and upcoming events. I believe very strongly that losing national/regional services such as K-Love would not be in the best public interest of our local community since there is not any replacement programming of equal quality. The tens of thousands of people listening to K-Love in our area on frequencies 89.9, 93.3, and 104.3 may be detrimentally affected by the FCC proposal as written. Please consider revising the LPFM expansion proposal to protect these stations and others like them.

Sincerely,
Maurice A. Lloyd, PE, CHMM
